Who InvoiceFly is for

- ✓ Fits if you are a contractor who sends invoices from a phone
- ✓ Works for one small business that wants a yearly price under $100

Who it is not for

- ✗ Not for you if you want a free plan, as there is none
- ✗ Tight if you do not want to enter a card, as the trial needs one
- ✗ Pricey if you pay weekly, at $8.99 a week against $98.99 a year
- ✗ Watch out: each business needs its own account and subscription
- ✗ Watch out: Stripe and PayPal charge their own card fees on top

Good to know

Good for

- ✓ Contractors and home-service businesses billing from a phone
- ✓ Sole traders who need quick invoices and estimates
- ✓ Businesses with one company to bill from

Worth knowing

- ⓘ There is no free plan; the trial needs a payment card and converts to a subscription.
- ⓘ Each business needs its own account and subscription; multiple businesses on one account is not supported yet.
- ⓘ Stripe and PayPal charge their own card-processing fees on top of the subscription.
- ⓘ The weekly plan costs $8.99 a week, so it is the more expensive way to pay over a year.

Keep it, or make your own?

Whether this is something you could build for yourself with an AI app builder, and what you would give up.

Keep it

The plain part of InvoiceFly you could make: invoicing, quotes and estimates, expense tracking and reports. What surrounds it you could not. The 1 things listed below take a company, not a weekend.

It costs $98.99 a year.

What you could make

- Invoicing, quotes and estimates, expense tracking and reports: an app builder makes these well.

What you could not

- A real app for iOS and Android. Something home-made would be a web page.

What this rests on. InvoiceFly's listing: what it does, where it runs, what it plugs into and what it costs. It is a judgement about the kind of software this is. We have not built a replacement for it, and making your own means looking after it too. How we decide, and every tool's verdict.
