Where it stands

Its grades against its category, and whether to keep it or make your own

17/86

Other docs and wiki tools it is graded above

Notaku's GPA of 2.2 is higher than 17 of the 86 other docs and wiki tools we grade, and level with 16.

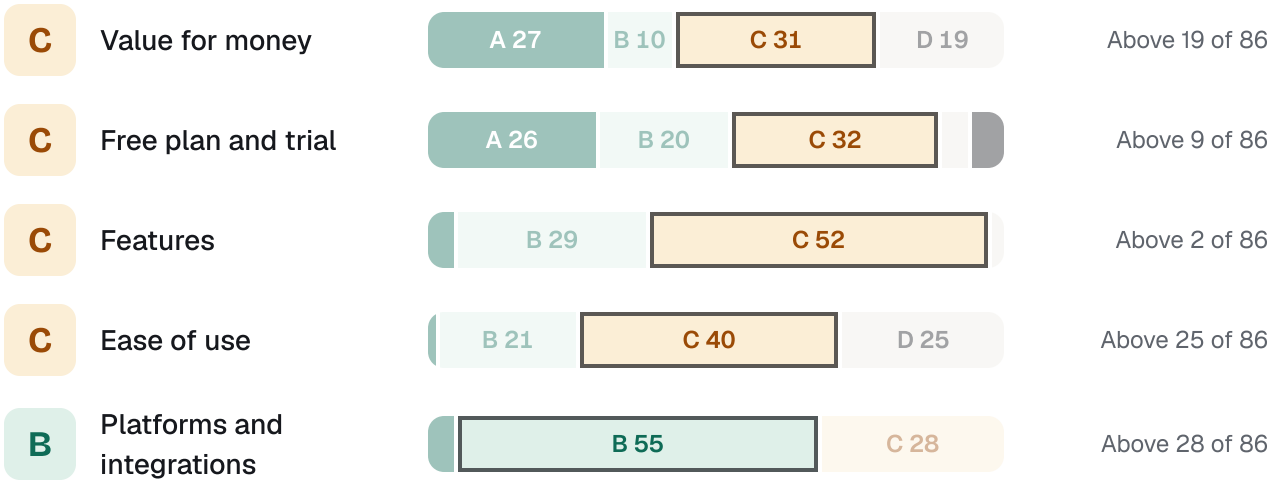

It stands best on platforms and integrations (B, above 28 of 86) and worst on features (C, above 2).

Its paid plans start at $17 a month, against a middle price of $18.50 for the category: 26 of the 57 others that charge start lower.

On features, ease of use and platforms it scores 2.3 out of 4. 20 tools score higher and cost less.

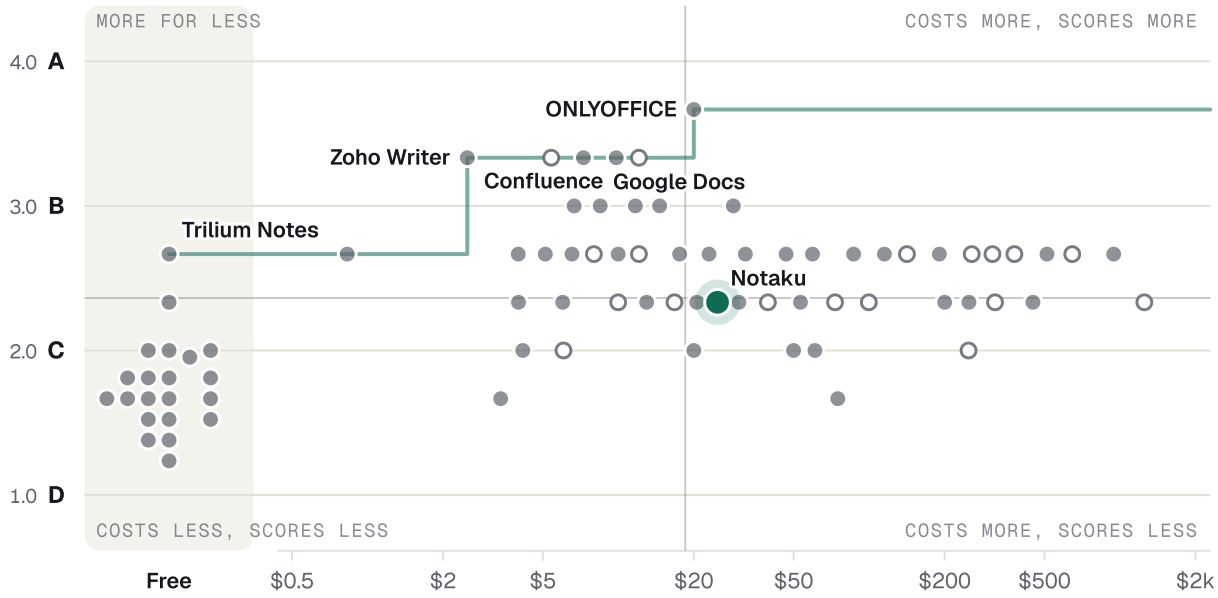

Each grade against the category

Every bar is all 87 docs and wiki tools we grade, cut by the letter each got. Notaku's own letter is outlined.

Price against what you get

Each dot is one of 79 docs and wiki tools. Further left costs less; higher up scores better on features, ease of use and platforms. Notaku is the marked dot.

What paid plans start at, a month (each step along is roughly double)

Keep it, or make your own?

Whether this is something you could build for yourself with an AI app builder, and what you would give up.

Keep it

To replace Notaku you would be making a search engine with an AI model behind it. That is not a weekend's work, with an AI app builder or without one.

That makes this kind of software worth paying for, not this one in particular: 53 of the 86 other docs and wiki tools grade higher. It costs $204 a year.

What you could make

- Documents and wiki: an app builder makes these well.

What you could not

- A search engine with an AI model behind it.

- It plugs into other products, Notion, Cloudflare and Next.js among them, and has an API.

What this rests on. Notaku's listing: what it does, where it runs, what it plugs into and what it costs. It is a judgement about the kind of software this is. We have not built a replacement for it, and making your own means looking after it too. How we decide, and every tool's verdict.
