Welcome

What it is, who it suits, its grades and the ten things to know first

1.2

GPA, above 0 of the 134 other automation tools we grade

Pandium is an embedded integration platform for software companies that want to offer native integrations to their own customers. Engineers write integration code with a development kit while Pandium handles authentication, versioning and hosting. Pricing follows platform access and active customer installs, not task counts.

To get you started, here are 8 things to know about Pandium, taken from its own pages and our grades.

1 Best for software companies embedding integrations in their product

Pandium is an embedded integration platform for software companies that want to give their own customers native integrations.

2 Paid plans start at $499 a month

As its pricing page puts it: $499 per month for up to 25 tenants.

3 It runs on Web

Web.

4 Integration Hub

Software teams build custom integrations with any API they choose, keeping control of the integration code in their own repos and languages.

5 Integration Development Kit

A kit for building, launching and promoting integrations, with managed authentication, versioning and hosting included on both plans.

6 AI code generator

The Pro plan includes an AI-powered generator for integration code; the Lite plan does not.

7 A 1.2 GPA, above 0 of 134

That is against the other automation tools we grade, on value, the free plan, features, ease of use and platforms.

8 Keep it

To replace Pandium you would be making connections to other products, each kept working as those products change. That is not a weekend's work, with an AI app builder or without one.

The report card

Best for software companies embedding integrations in their product

Pandium is an embedded integration platform for software companies that want to give their own customers native integrations. Pandium Lite is $499 a month for up to 25 tenants. The next tier starts at $2,000, and it's not meant for someone automating their own apps.

TOOLGPA REPORT CARD — Pandium — Graded Nov 13, 2026

SUBJECT	GRADE	COMMENT
Value for money	D	$499 a month for 25 tenants, which is where the dearest tenth of automation tools starts. Pro is $2,000 a month and up.
Free plan and trial	F	No free plan or trial. Plans are arranged through a demo.
Features	C	An integration hub, development kit, AI code generator and insights. The marketplace and services are paid add-ons.
Ease of use	D	No store rating on record. Engineers write integration code with a development kit.
Platforms and integrations	C	Web only, no integrations list. It's a platform that others build on.

Grade point average — Weak, out of 4.0 1.2

An A is worth 4 points, a B 3, a C 2, a D 1 and an F nothing. The GPA is the average of the five.

Who Pandium is for

- ✓ Fits if you run a software company and want integrations your customers install themselves
- ✓ Works for an engineering team that can write integration code with an SDK

Who it is not for

- ✕ Pricey if you're small: $499 a month covers up to 25 tenants
- ✕ Watch out: a tenant is one customer's installed copy of one integration, so 100 customers on one integration is 100 tenants
- ✕ Not for you if you want to connect your own apps, since it's built for software vendors
- ✕ Watch out: the in-app marketplace and integration services are paid add-ons

Good to know

Good for

- ✓ B2B SaaS companies shipping native integrations to their customers
- ✓ Engineering teams that want code-level control rather than fixed connectors
- ✓ Partnership teams running an integration marketplace

Worth knowing

- ⓘ A tenant is one customer's installed copy of one integration, so 100 customers on one integration count as 100 tenants; Lite includes 25.
- ⓘ Pro starts at $2,000 per month, with extra fees for higher tenant packages and add-ons.
- ⓘ The in-app marketplace and integration services are paid add-ons, and plans are arranged through a demo.
- ⓘ It is built for software vendors embedding integrations, not for individuals automating their own apps.

Where it stands

Its grades against its category, and whether to keep it or make your own

0/134

Other automation tools it is graded above

Pandium's GPA of 1.2 is higher than 0 of the 134 other automation tools we grade.

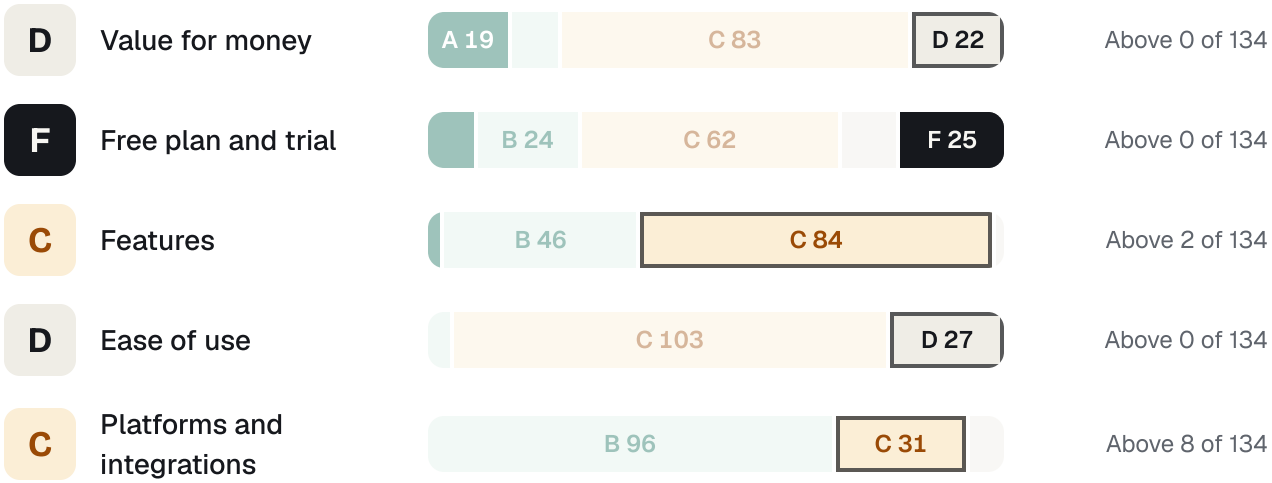

It stands best on platforms and integrations (C, above 8 of 134) and worst on free plan and trial (F, above 0).

Its paid plans start at $499 a month, against a middle price of $22.17 for the category: 59 of the 65 others that charge start lower.

On features, ease of use and platforms it scores 1.7 out of 4. 65 tools score higher and cost less.

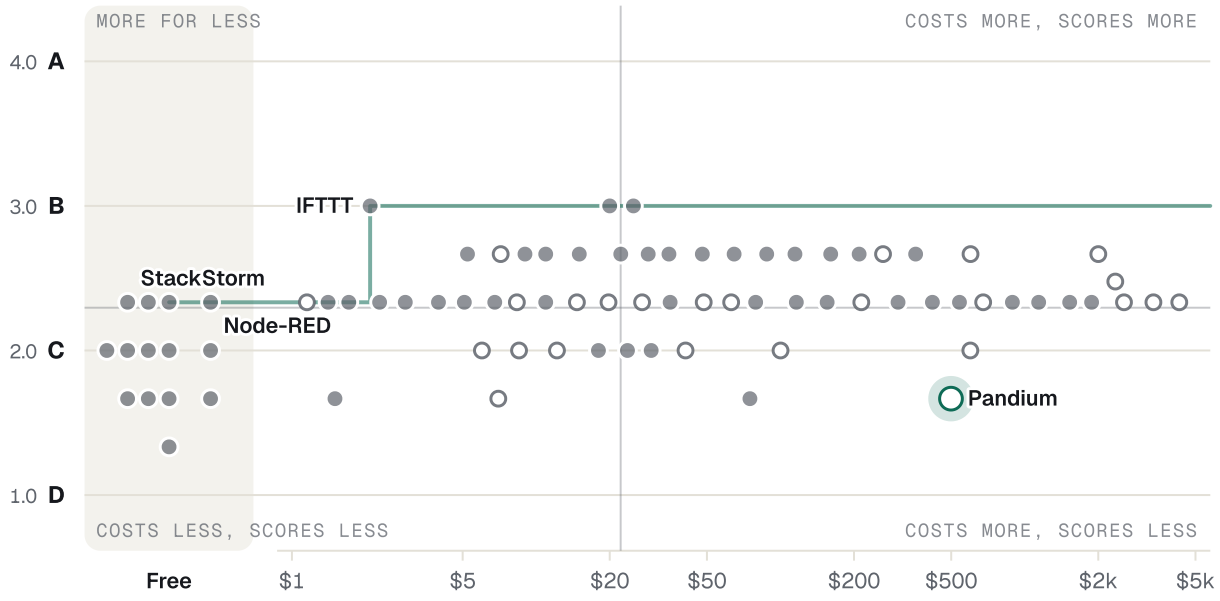

Each grade against the category

Every bar is all 135 automation tools we grade, cut by the letter each got. Pandium's own letter is outlined.

Price against what you get

Each dot is one of 80 automation tools. Further left costs less; higher up scores better on features, ease of use and platforms. Pandium is the marked dot.

What paid plans start at, a month (each step along is roughly double)

Keep it, or make your own?

Whether this is something you could build for yourself with an AI app builder, and what you would give up.

Keep it

To replace Pandium you would be making connections to other products, each kept working as those products change. That is not a weekend's work, with an AI app builder or without one.

That makes this kind of software worth paying for, not this one in particular: 134 of the 134 other automation tools grade higher. It costs $5,988 a year.

What you could not

- ✕ Connections to other products, each kept working as those products change.
- ✕ Connections that pull numbers from dozens of other services.

- ✕ AI features, unless you pay a model provider for each request yourself.

What this rests on. Pandium's listing: what it does, where it runs, what it plugs into and what it costs. It is a judgement about the kind of software this is. We have not built a replacement for it, and making your own means looking after it too. How we decide, and every tool's verdict.
