Who Snap Schedule is for

- ✓ Fits if you run a police, utility or care agency where a scheduler works through callouts
- ✓ Works for teams with few schedulers and many employees

Who it is not for

- ✗ Skip it if you want monthly billing, as the page shows list prices per year
- ✗ Tight if you want staff to log in, since self-service is a paid add-on
- ✗ Pricey if you have many schedulers, until the volume tiers
- ✗ Watch out: the total depends on scheduler and employee counts, and packs are 5 at a time

Good to know

Good for

- ✓ Utilities, public safety and long-term care operations
- ✓ Organizations with few schedulers and many staff
- ✓ Teams that rely on callout lists to fill gaps

Worth knowing

- ⓘ Employee self-service is a separate paid add-on, sold in packs of 5 employees.
- ⓘ Pricing is by scheduler and by employee with online access, so the total depends on both counts.
- ⓘ The pricing page shows list prices per year; no monthly billing option is shown.

Keep it

The plain part of Snap Schedule you could make: time off and reports. What surrounds it you could not. The 3 things listed below take a company, not a weekend.

It costs $450 a year.

What you could make

- Time off and reports: an app builder makes these well.

What you could not

- A rota the whole staff sees on their phones, with swaps and alerts.

- ✕ Clocking in from a phone, checked against where and when.
- ✕ The depth: we grade its features B, which means it covers the whole job.

What this rests on. Snap Schedule's listing: what it does, where it runs, what it plugs into and what it costs. It is a judgement about the kind of software this is. We have not built a replacement for it, and making your own means looking after it too. How we decide, and every tool's verdict.
