PART 04 · STANDING

Where it stands

Its grades against its category, and whether to keep it or make your own

25/69

Other time tracking apps it is graded above

Teamdeck's GPA of 2.4 is higher than 25 of the 69 other time tracking apps we grade, and level with 16.

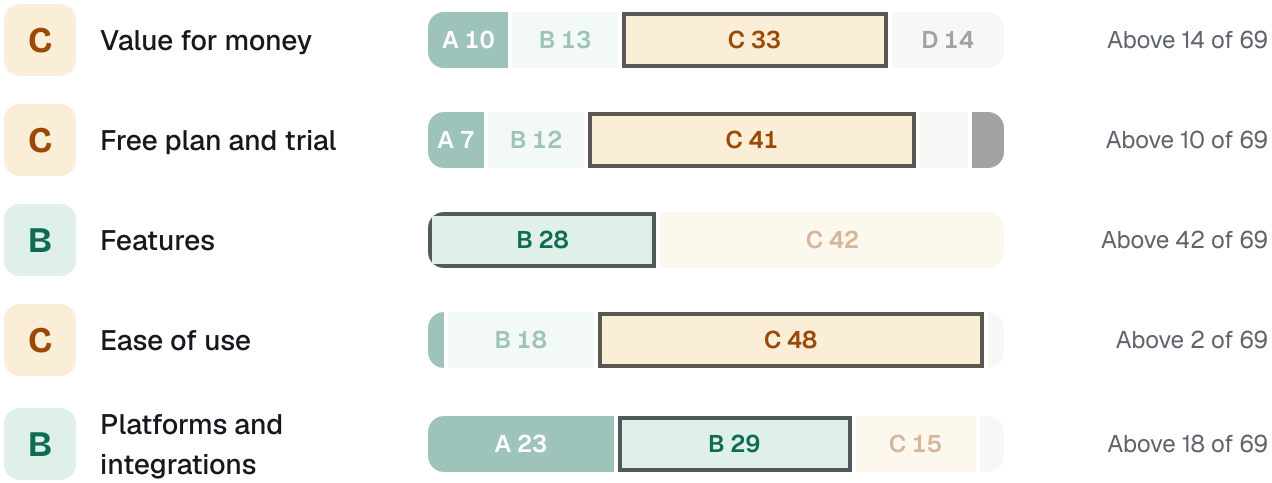

It stands best on features (B, above 42 of 69) and worst on ease of use (C, above 2).

Its paid plans start at $1.80 a month for each person, against a middle price of $6.70 for the category: 1 of the 58 others that charge start lower.

On features, ease of use and platforms it scores 2.7 out of 4, and no tool on the category's chart scores higher without costing more.

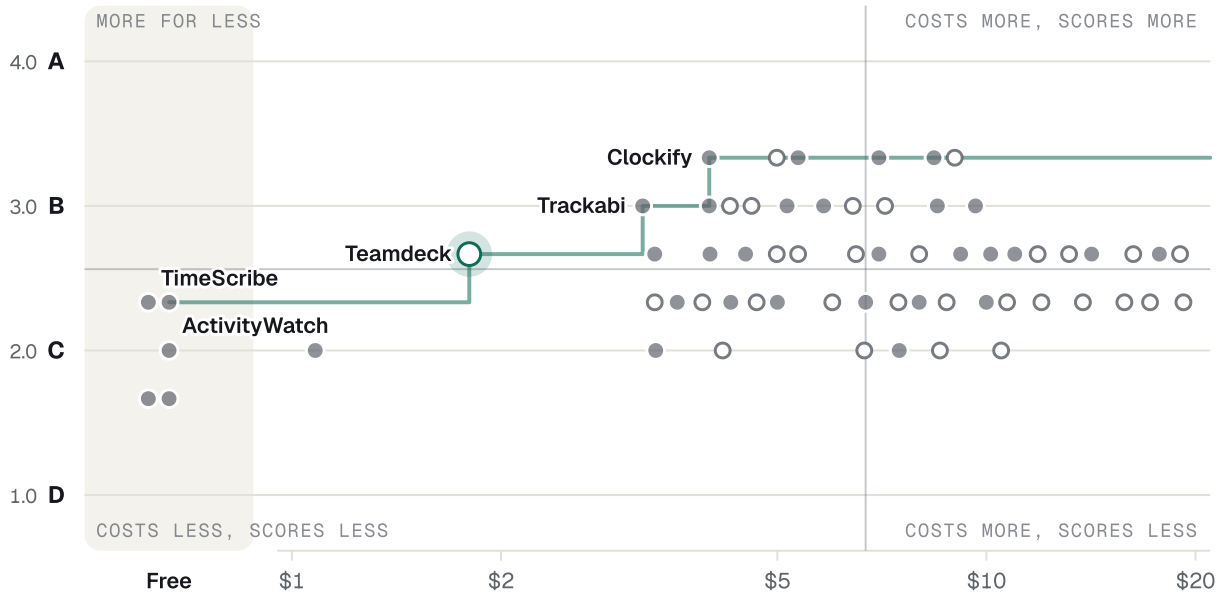

Each grade against the category

Every bar is all 70 time tracking apps we grade, cut by the letter each got. Teamdeck's own letter is outlined.

Price against what you get

Each dot is one of 64 time tracking apps. Further left costs less; higher up scores better on features, ease of use and platforms. Teamdeck is the marked dot.

What paid plans start at, a month (each step along is roughly double)

Keep it, or make your own?

Whether this is something you could build for yourself with an AI app builder, and what you would give up.

Keep it

The plain part of Teamdeck you could make: time tracking, calendar, reports and time off. What surrounds it you could not. The 4 things listed below take a company, not a weekend.

It costs $21.60 a year.

What you could make

- Time tracking, calendar, reports and time off: an app builder makes these well.

What you could not

- A real app for iOS and Android. Something home-made would be a web page.

- It is priced for each person, which means accounts and billing for a team.
- It plugs into other products, Google Calendar, Outlook Calendar and Slack among them, and has an API.
- The depth: we grade its features B, which means it covers the whole job.

What this rests on. Teamdeck's listing: what it does, where it runs, what it plugs into and what it costs. It is a judgement about the kind of software this is. We have not built a replacement for it, and making your own means looking after it too. How we decide, and every tool's verdict.
