Welcome

What it is, who it suits, its grades and the ten things to know first

2.0

GPA, above 8 of the 98 other time tracking apps we grade

Veriato is employee monitoring software sold in two products: User Activity Monitoring (UAM), which records on-site, remote and hybrid activity, and Insider Risk Management (IRM), which adds risk scoring and behavior analytics. It watches emails, chats, websites, applications, screenshots, idle time and keystrokes, and can be deployed in the cloud or on premises.

To get you started, here are 9 things to know about Veriato, taken from its own pages and our grades.

The report card

Best for monitoring staff activity and insider risk

Veriato records email, chat, websites, screenshots and keystrokes and scores productivity for $18 a user a month. But it needs at least 5 users, the risk-scoring product needs 20 and a quote, and it is a monitoring tool, not a timesheet.

TOOLGPA REPORT CARD

Veriato

Graded Nov 13, 2026

SUBJECT	GRADE	COMMENT
Value for money	C	$18 a user a month on annual billing, with a 5-user minimum. That's well above the $10 dearer quarter of time trackers and just under the $19 dearest tenth.
Free plan and trial	D	A free trial is available on request, and its length isn't stated.
Features	C	Records a wide range of activity and scores productivity, with alerts and redaction. It doesn't do timesheets or invoicing.
Ease of use	C	No store rating on record. Agents have to be deployed, with cloud or on-premises options.
Platforms and integrations	B	Windows, Mac, Chrome and Android, plus a Microsoft 365 link and a REST API. Linux isn't listed.

Grade point average — Fair, out of 4.0 2.0

An A is worth 4 points, a B 3, a C 2, a D 1 and an F nothing. The GPA is the average of the five.

Who Veriato is for

- ✓ Fits if you need a record of staff activity for compliance and have 5 or more people
- ✓ Works for security teams that want risk scores on top of activity logs

Who it is not for

- ✗ Skip it if you need timesheets or billing, because it's monitoring only
- ✗ Pricey if you add up the floor: 5 users at $18 is $90 a month
- ✗ Not for you if you want risk scoring without a quote, as that product needs 20 users
- ✗ Watch out: it captures keystrokes, screenshots and chats, so consent and local law need checking

Good to know

Good for

- ✓ Security and compliance teams running workplace investigations
- ✓ Regulated sectors such as financial services and healthcare, as the vendor's industry pages suggest
- ✓ Companies that want activity monitoring priced per user, not per device

Worth knowing

- ⓘ Only UAM shows a price; IRM requires a quote and at least 20 users.
- ⓘ Monitoring covers keystrokes, screenshots and chats, so consent and local employment law need checking.
- ⓘ Devices covered are Windows, Mac, Chrome and Android, according to the pricing FAQ; Linux is not listed.
- ⓘ It is a monitoring product, not a timesheet or invoicing tool.

Where it stands

Its grades against its category, and whether to keep it or make your own

Veriato's GPA of 2.0 is higher than 8 of the 98 other time tracking apps we grade, and level with 14.

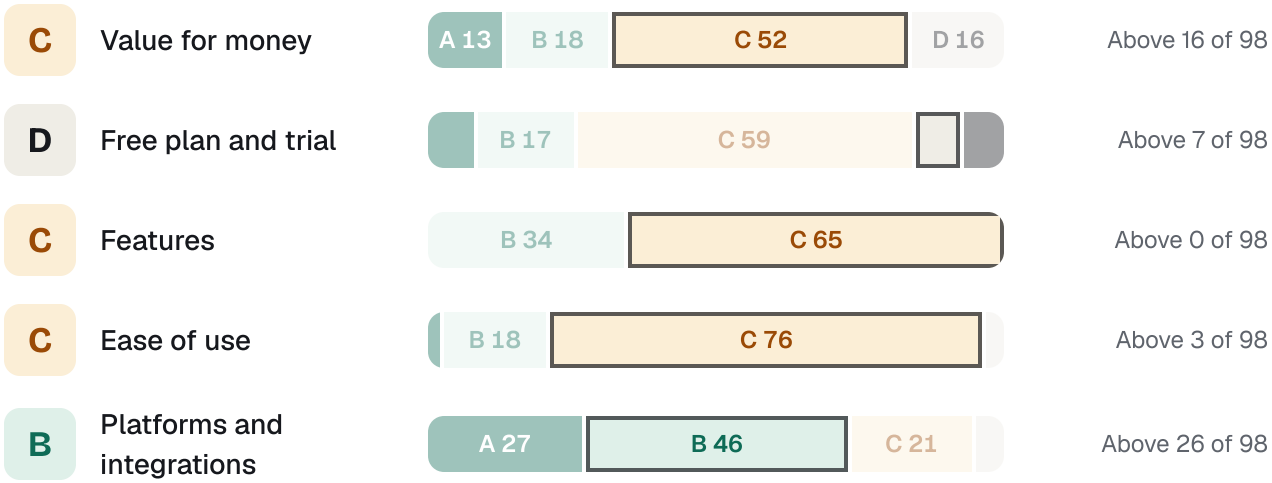

It stands best on platforms and integrations (B, above 26 of 98) and worst on free plan and trial (D, above 7).

Its paid plans start at $18 a month for each person, against a middle price of $6.99 for the category: 71 of the 80 others that charge start lower.

Each grade against the category

Every bar is all 99 time tracking apps we grade, cut by the letter each got. Veriato's own letter is outlined.

Price against what you get

Each dot is one of 87 time tracking apps. Further left costs less; higher up scores better on features, ease of use and platforms. Veriato is the marked dot.

Keep it, or make your own?

Whether this is something you could build for yourself with an AI app builder, and what you would give up.

Keep it

The plain part of Veriato you could make: time tracking and reports. What surrounds it you could not. The 7 things listed below take a company, not a weekend.

That makes this kind of software worth paying for, not this one in particular: 76 of the 98 other time tracking apps grade higher. It costs $216 a year.

What you could make

- Time tracking and reports: an app builder makes these well.

What you could not

- Capture tools hooked into the operating system.

- Connections that pull numbers from dozens of other services.
- Apps for macOS, Windows and Android that stay in step with each other.
- It is priced for each person, which means accounts and billing for a team.
- It plugs into other products, Microsoft 365 among them, and has an API.
- AI features, unless you pay a model provider for each request yourself.
- What a company asks for before it lets staff use something: audit logs.

What this rests on. Veriato's listing: what it does, where it runs, what it plugs into and what it costs. It is a judgement about the kind of software this is. We have not built a replacement for it, and making your own means looking after it too. How we decide, and every tool's verdict.
