Welcome

What it is, who it suits, its grades and the ten things to know first

2.0

GPA, above 7 of the 169 other note-taking apps we grade

VoodooPad is a Mac note-taking app built around wiki links, where typed words turn into links to other pages. Dropped-in files, folders, PDFs and URLs link up the same way, and a page can be encrypted. A document can be exported as PDF, ePub or HTML, or shared through a synced folder.

Where it stands

Its grades against its category, and whether to keep it or make your own

7/169

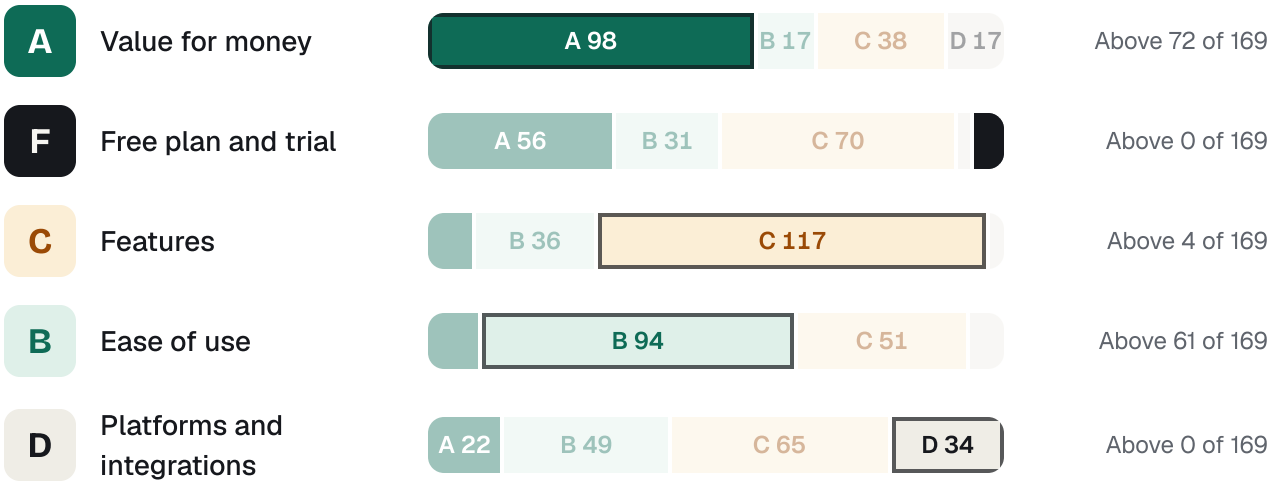

Other note-taking apps it is graded above

VoodooPad's GPA of 2.0 is higher than 7 of the 169 other note-taking apps we grade, and level with 10.

It stands best on value for money (A, above 72 of 169) and worst on free plan and trial (F, above 0).

Each grade against the category

Every bar is all 170 note-taking apps we grade, cut by the letter each got. VoodooPad's own letter is outlined.

Keep it, or make your own?

Whether this is something you could build for yourself with an AI app builder, and what you would give up.

Keep it

The plain part of VoodooPad you could make: notes, wiki and linked notes. What surrounds it you could not. The 2 things listed below take a company, not a weekend.

That makes this kind of software worth paying for, not this one in particular: 152 of the 169 other note-taking apps grade higher. It costs $24.99, paid once.

What you could make

- Notes, wiki and linked notes: an app builder makes these well.

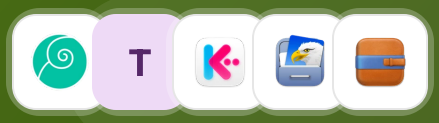

What you could not

- A file manager working directly on your disk.
- A real app for macOS. Something home-made would be a web page.

What this rests on. VoodooPad's listing: what it does, where it runs, what it plugs into and what it costs. It is a judgement about the kind of software this is. We have not built a replacement for it, and making your own means looking after it too. How we decide, and every tool's verdict.
